RUMOR PERSISTS DESPITE DENIALS OF BIG OIL DEAL

Standard Oil Company Officials Deny Agreement is Pending

IL DUCE IN JOVIAL MOOD

Leader Tells Aides They Need Not Worry About Source of Fuel Supply

ROME, Dec. 4—(INS)—Premier Benito Mussolini has let his subordinates know that Italy need not worry about oil supplies, and this knowledge gave credibility today, despite denials on both sides of the Atlantic, to the report that a $90,000,000 deal has been made or was being made with a subsidiary of Standard Oil company of New Jersey to provide Italy with oil if the League of Nations ban it.

Adding to the denial in New York of Walter C. Teagle, president of Standard of New Jersey, the foreign office spokesman said this was just "another preposterous tale," yet private Italian and foreign sources refused to dismiss the possibility of some such deal.

Scoffs At Shortage

When the question of a possible oil shortage, due to the threatened league embargo, came up at the last meeting of the fascist grand council, Mussolini is reliably reported to have said confidently: "As far as oil supplies are concerned, we may rest easy on that score."

Furthermore, it was learned that Italian newspapers have been urged in the national interest to "soft pedal" news about Italian

Hull Office Studying Oil Deal Report

National Officials Doubt Truth of Rome Press Reports Concerning Supply

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(INS)—Danger of a new move developing in Europe to put upon the United States responsibility for failure of the old world to settle its political quarrels was seen here today.

Reports of a secret deal between Standard Oil interests and the Italian government for unlimited supplies of oil to Italy's war machine in return for a 30-year monopoly of the Italian market prompted the fears that Uncle Sam was in danger of being made the "goat" for the failure of the European powers to enforce peace.

Reports Checked

The state department professed to be without any knowledge whatever of the proposed deal, outside of press reports. The department was, of course, concerned over the reports and efforts were being made to check them both here and through the American embassy in Rome.

However, officials were inclined to view the reported deal as a possible bluff on the part of the Italian government to forestall imposition of a league embargo on oil.

If it became definitely apparent that Italy was going to obtain all the oil it needed for its war machine from American interests, it was considered here as likely that the league powers would use that fact as an excuse for not applying an oil embargo against Italy.

May Forestall Action

Thus, it was pointed out, it would be to the advantage of the

REVENUE COLLECTOR, DETECTIVE ARE SLAIN

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 4—(INS)—A federal internal revenue agent, Louis Pappan, and George Stewart, private detective, were shot and killed here early today in a fight in the Sheridan club, exclusive Tulsa night club.

Holly Anderson, Tulsa-co attorney, said today he was questioning Trye Parks, parking concession manager of the club, and George McCullough, caterer, in connection with the fatal shooting. "Parks said Stewart and Pappan entered the night club and tried to hold it up," Anderson said. "Parks and McCullough jumped in and beat them up and then took them outside. Shortly thereafter, according to other employees and guests of the club, shots were heard."

Survives "Refrigerator" Ride

SURVIVING A 10-day cross-continent ride in the sealed ice compartment of a railway refrigerator car, Glenn Boidan, 14-year-old Motley, Minn., farm boy, is pictured above on his cot in a Baltimore hospital, where physicians worked to soothe a resultant fever and if possible to save the boy's frostbitten feet from amputation. Starved and half frozen from his confinement in the icy prison which he had entered at Roseville, Cal., Glenn was rescued from the refrigerator in Baltimore when another youth was attracted by moans as he unloaded lettuce on the freight platform. Glenn, who had run away from home on Labor Day to escape school, "invaded" the car at Roseville to return home because his father was sick.

TWO ARMY MEN CRASH VICTIMS

Officers Killed as High Wind Forces Bolling Wreck

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(INS)—Two army air officers, Major George M. Rice and Lieut. Harry H. Goettrey, were killed in a plane crash today at Bolling field. Officials at the field said the plane was coming in from Mitchell field, New York, and was about to land when apparently high wind blew their ship out of control and sent it crashing into a clump of trees at the east end of the landing runway.

Goettrey was piloting the plane, it was believed, as Major Rice was being brought here as a passenger. Army air corps officials were unable to explain the crash. The ship was at low altitude and preparing to land when it got out of control. The plane was an old model pursuit type.

Major Rice's home was in Thermopolis, Wyo., and Capt. Goettrey came from St. Paul, Minn. Rice, who was 37, enlisted in the army during the World war was detailed to the air corps. He was made a second lieutenant during the war and afterwards remained in the service, attaining his present rank of major on June 20, 1935. Goettrey was 29 and graduated from West Point in 1930.

Governor Declares Legislator is "Tool" of Chain of Newspapers

HUNSICKER VOTES "NO"

Representative Clark Hunsicker voted against the resolution demanding Governor Davey submit proof of his charges against Rep. George J. Harter.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—(INS)—

Gov. Martin L. Davey this afternoon accepted the challenge of the House of Representatives and promised to produce legal evidence substantiating his charges that Rep. George J. Harter (D), blind Akron-solon, "hounded" state officials to get liquor licenses for Akron residents.

Davey's statement was his reply to the barrage of charges laid down by Harter in seeking a legislative probe of the state liquor department and of alleged political influence of Davey and Francis Poulson, state Democratic chairman to obtain votes against Harter's proposal.

Put in Legal Form

"Inasmuch as Representative Harter has asked for proof of his unusual interest in several liquor licenses in Akron, it will be made available to the House of Representatives just as soon as it can be put in proper legal form," the governor declared.

The House late yesterday adopted a resolution by Harter by a vote of 63 to 52 calling on Davey to produce evidence in support of his charge.

"Meanwhile," Davey added, "may I call attention to the following conspicuous facts: First, Mr. Harter has carried on an unprovoked and unwarranted assault on the integrity of the state liquor department without offering any facts or making any specific charges. His has been a campaign of innuendo and inferential statements." (Continued on Page Six)

AAA Defended, Assailed In High Court Actions

Beet Growers Approve Legislation While Cotton Manufacturers Hit Federal Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(INS)—The AAA was assailed and defended in briefs filed in the Supreme court today by "Friends of the court" in the Hoosac Mills case which is to be argued Monday.

While counsel for the national and mountain states beet growers associations defended constitutionality of the AAA processing taxes attorneys for the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers presented an opposite view.

The brief of the cotton manufacturers was largely devoted to an effort to destroy the government's argument that "the general welfare" clause of the constitution gives congress the power to raise processing taxes and pay benefits to farmers.

"The general welfare clause," Malcolm Donald and Edward Elder, Boston lawyers, contended, cannot remove the limits on federal power contained in the rest of the nation's basic law.

"Otherwise," said the brief, "we reach the absurd result that the express intent of the constitution to confine the regulation of agriculture and other local matters to the states can be nullified by the simple expedient of appropriating

BUTTON SUPPLY IS NEEDED FOR GARMENT WORK

Four sewing machines were humming Wednesday at the relief offices on E. Main-st where 14 women are turning out garments for needy families.

Approximately 300 towels were turned out Tuesday. Dresses, shirts, children's coveralls and various other items will be made under the project in charge of Mrs. Beulah H. Madison, N. Scioto-st.

One of the items being made Wednesday were children's outing bloomers and somewhere along the line the government left out buttons. Local residents have been asked to look through their sewing baskets and if they have additional buttons to call the relief office and employees will call for them.

Old patterns are also badly needed by the workers.

STOCK MARKET CLIMBS TODAY

One to Three Points Recorded; Steels in Demand

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(INS)—The stock market swept forward 1 to 3 points today in a continuation of yesterday's rise, with renewed efforts abroad to find a peace formula for the Italo-Ethiopian hostilities the principal stimulant.

A number of carriers like N. Y. Central went into new high ground.

Silvers were buoyant with U. S. Smelting up 3 points. Anaconda and International Nickel went to new highs in big dealings.

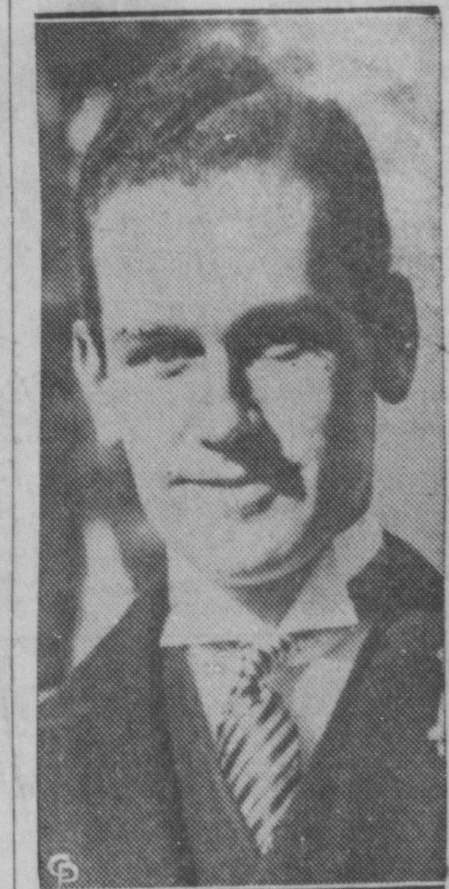

Steels were in better demand in response to the mid-week review of the industry. Sizeable gains were scored by Bethlehem and U. S. Steel. Westinghouse was up 2 points at one time in the equipments. Motors were stronger though gains were fractional. Utilities lagged.

Cotton reacted after yesterday's bulge while grains were quiet. Bonds were strong. Gold currencies continued nervous.

COUNCILMEN TO MEET

City council will hold its regular meeting tonight and reconsider the bond issues recently passed for back bills and WPA projects. It was also believed other small appropriation ordinances would be considered.

Rich Man Missing

POLICE of three states joined in the search for Frank A. Baker, Jr., above, son of a millionaire Kansas City wholesale grocer and divorced husband of Beatrice Ripley, Chicago socialite, when he was reported missing since Thanksgiving night. Possibility of foul play was indicated when his parents received a mysterious telegram, sent in Kansas City, a day after he left home to attend a football game at Lawrence, Kas. The wire simply read that he was "all right" and would be home the following day.

TIGERS EKE OUT 14-10 EDGE OVER NEW HOLLAND '5'

Tight Defense Stops Landman
With Single Action Shot;
Play Two More

Dressed in bright, flashy uniforms but failing to impress in their first start, the Red and Black cage team took New Holland into camp Tuesday evening in the CAC gym, 14 to 10.

A large crowd witnessed the contest.

Whether it was the new uniforms, or the fact that the game was the first of the year, or what, the Tigers did not handle the ball as expected. Their defense was closely knit, however, and stopped big Ev Landman with only four points.

Several of the Red and Black hopefuls, who are expected to carry a lot of the burden of a successful season, appeared tired at times. But, after all, the game was the first of a long season and a couple more will be necessary before Jack Landrum will have his boys in the shape they should be to become contenders for the Central Buckeye league title.

Scoreless First Period

Neither team was able to score in the first period. In the second the local crew took a lead of 8 to 2 that carried through the game. Speakman, sleek little forward, proved a threat at all times and gave promise in this contest that he will be a star. Herb Dennis performed well at guard and Landman was a constant threat, but Dick Melson and a couple more of his mates kept the tall star bottled up the biggest part of the game. Landman's only basket came on a follow shot when he grabbed the ball after a bounce and dropped it over the net.

The remainder of the week promises to be interesting with the Tiger crew meeting Bourneville on Friday evening and Jackson-twp on Saturday. Both games are to be played on the CAC court.

Both Minnesota Tackles Chosen; Backfield Includes Smith, Berwanger, Wilson and Grayson

By DAVIS J. WALSH, (INS) Sports editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Based upon the findings of staff men and qualified observers in all sections of the country, the International News Service today is making public its all-American football team for 1935, as follows:

Ends: Tinsley, Louisiana State, and Moscrip, Stanford; tackles: Smith and Widseth, Minnesota; guards, Weller, Princeton, and Michaels, Villanova; center, Lester, Texas Christian; quarterback, Smith, Alabama; halfbacks, Berwanger, Chicago, and Wilson, Southern Methodist; fullback, Grayson, Stanford.

Few Are Unanimous

Thus, we are paying off on first money only and, in some cases, the decisions may seem to have been drawn a little fine. In fact, not more than four choices—Berwanger, Wilson, either Widseth or Smith and Weller—seem to need no defense whatever. They belong so definitely as to deny argument.

Where controversy begins, perhaps, is in awarding a team like Princeton only one place and Minnesota two. But this pair were great because they were teams, with one individual practically as good as another. Many selectors are listing Lea, of Princeton, at end but I'm assuming the responsibility of dropping him. I've seen the lad, he's all right—and that's about all.

It was a struggle to leave Biese, of Minnesota, out of the backfield. But Grayson is better now than at any time in three years—and in 1933 and 1934, this was good enough. Besides, Widseth and

Smith, almost equally adept, probably had more to do with Minnesota's success than any other single factor. They got some robust competition for their places, at that, from a field of excellent tackles, including Sarno, of Fordham, and Paterson, of Auburn.

Jones "Among Others"

Another Auburn man, Gilbert, put on a spirited bid for the center position, closely pressed by Muller, Stanford; Herwig, California; Jorgensen, St. Mary's; and Jones, Ohio State, among others. Personally, I liked that Cullinan, of Princeton, too, yielded to insistent pressure on Lester, so many insisting that he is the finest thing that has happened in years.

ROSENBLUM TO RETIRE, THEN WED N. Y. HEIRESS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Maxie Rosenbloom, former world's light heavyweight champion, today announced he would retire from the ring Jan. 1 and within 60 days marry Mary Elizabeth Campbell, eastern heiress.

Rosenbloom now is working in a motion picture at the RKO-Radio studios.

"I like acting better than fighting, anyway," he said. "I prefer comedy parts—but here I am playing the role of a gangster."

"There's only one thing would keep me from retiring from the ring, and that is a bout with Joe Louis. He's not so hot."

FIGHT CARD SET

The stage is all set for Norman Aronson's fight card at the armory Thursday evening with local boys to take part.

A substitution has been made with Joe Moore replacing Pug Fowler. Fowler slipped on the ice and has an ouchy ankle.

All the other principals are ready and everything is set for one big evening, Aronson announces.

The curtain-raiser is called at 8:30.

About This And That In Many Sports

New Holland or Atlanta

New Holland has a cager that Atlanta thinks it ought to have—Speakman, light-haired sophomore star, lives a lot nearer the Perry-twp center than he does New Holland but he attends the latter school—His brother, George, starred in basketball and track at Atlanta.

Both Teams Scouted

New Holland and Circleville cage teams were well-scouted Tuesday evening—Coaches Al Kauber of Ashville, Emil Haney of Williamsport, and Bob Terhune of Jackson were in the stands—All are mutual foes of both teams in action last night—Kauber had Millar and Gregg of his team along, and even had a member of his school board, Timmy Miller, down to see how basketball is played here.

East Out In Cold

Apparently eastern United States is short in football ability this fall—The Rose Bowl choice is Southern Methodist, considered west to most of us—The "northern choice" for the Miami Sugar bowl game is Texas Christian, also rated west—S. M. U. meets Stanford and should win and Texas Christian will probably play Louisiana State; this game is a toss-up with Stinging Sam Baugh's TCU crew a slight favorite.

Moscrip Not Able

Monk Moscrip's parents have returned from the west coast to their home in Adena, Jefferson-co., and report their son because of injuries will be unable to play in the Rose Bowl contest—Moscrip will make most "all" teams for the third straight year—He does everything in the proper manner.

Al Simmons To Tiger

Bet your last nickel Al Simmons, famed right-handed ball player, will be in the Detroit Tiger lineup next year—The Chicago Sox will receive $25,000 with Outfielder Gerry Walker and Infielder Gilbert English thrown in.

LOUISIANA STATE, TEXAS CHRISTIAN IN "SUGAR BOWL"

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Louisiana State university today sought permission of the southeastern conference to participate in the second annual "Sugar Bowl" grid classic, to be played here New Year's day.

D. S. U. and Texas Christian university were selected as the principals by the committee in charge last night.

Warren V. Miller, president of the mid-winter sports association, said today that both schools had definitely accepted the invitation, and that he had little doubt L. S. U. will be granted permission to play as Tulane was readily allowed to participate in last year's game.

Texas Christian's team was located at Texline, Tex., enroute to California where the horned frogs play Santa Clara, Saturday.

Both teams have been defeated once this season, T. C. U. by southern Methodist 20 to 14, last week after winning 10 straight games. The Frogs whipped Howard Payne, North Texas Teachers, Arkansas, Tulsa, Texas A. & M., Centenary, Baylor, Loyola, Texas and Rice.

L. S. U. lost its opening game of the season to Rice 10 to 7, but thereafter built up an impressive record with wins over Texas, Manhattan, Arkansas, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Mississippi State, Georgia, Southwestern and Tulane.

PIGS IS "INTEREST"

DEDHAM, Mass.—Chief of Police George C. McGilly had little trouble finding the 50 "ear-marked" pigs stolen from William P. Nickerson last May by Theodore and Daniel Chamberlain. He had an animated jig-saw on his hands, however, when the judge told him to find the "interest" accrued by the stolen property during the time it was out of the hands of its owner. He is still looking for little piglets given away by the Chamberlain cousins.

Measure to Aid
Lienholders Appears in Defense

Dec. 3—(INS)—
A hearing fire of attorney farm mortgage right to challenge
Lienholders, the Frazier-Lempke law, was to be held here today.
William Lempke,
attorney, and co-attor-

Lempke declared that owners of property have the right to a mortgage savings fund, and that the lienholders are not entitled to the property.

S. District Judge
H. H. Hough, who is presiding here
due to the illness of Judge Benson, has ruled that the rights of the lien-holders are not to be set aside.

San Francisco police
the city for someone with expert knowledge of chemistry in connection with the poisoned soda which resulted in the death of three persons and the serious illness of fifteen.

Joseph Rosenthal, right, proprietor of the store in which the soda was sold to the public, and Nick Manno, head of a salvage firm which sold it to Rosenthal, were brought to court
to answer a pure food

"and the final decision in this case can only be decided by the highest tribunal in the land."

The bill was opposed by Fred Rector, Columbus attorney, representing mortgage holders with claims against 15 central Ohio farmers.

The attorney contended that the bill "gives the mortgagee a weapon with which to fleece those who have aided him in good faith."

"What is to become of the mortgage holder when he sees property in which he has invested taken from him without due process of law?"
the attorney quired.

YALE GRADUATE HELPS LIBRARY

Sixteen Volumes Presented By Person Whose Identity Remains Secret

"A graduate of Yale" who prefers to remain anonymous, has made a valuable gift to the Circleville Public Library. During the early summer word was received that a list of beneficiaries of gifts to be made by a member of the faculty of Yale University, the house was accompanied by a list of the publications of the Yale University Press, and which the librarians were asked to check with the needs of their individual institutions.

The following quotation from a letter received about ten days ago is self-explanatory, and is followed by a list of the books received, and now ready for circulation:

"Please be sure that I am happy now to be authorized to advise you that, on the instructions of 'A Graduate of Yale', I am directing the Yale University Press to forward to you... one copy each of the 16 volumes listed below, valued at $50, which you may enter in your records as having been presented by 'A Graduate of Yale', since he has preferred this gift of his to be an anonymous one. The books thus chosen by him for presentation to your library are, I might add, those which were selected by the greatest number of the librarians who replied to our letter of last June. Under these circumstances the donor feels that the volumes he has now given to your library are books which have been chosen by those most familiar with the work of public libraries as being desirable additions to your collections—an opinion in which he trusts you will concur."

WPA Project Rebuilding Landmarks on Old Canal

New Bridge to Be Erected for Driving Into Recreational Area; Stone Spillway to Add to Efficiency

By FRANKLIN KIBLER

Like rereading chapters of an old book, a local WPA project is reconstructing interesting and historic landmarks of the Ohio canal.

The old Westfall bridge crossing the canal will be one of the landmarks reconstructed in the project. The original stone abutments will be used and rails from the Court-st interurban line will complete the span. The road-way will be 14 feet wide.

The original steel bridge with plank flooring used at Westfall was carried away in the 1913 flood to a point about 200 feet down the canal and lodged against the Warehouse. It was not damaged and was moved to Walnut-twp. This old bridge span was constructed on the "dump" type with a trap door used for loading grain on canal boats pulled under the bridge.

Forded Scioto
Vehicles forded the Scioto at a point near the old span and reached the Chillicothe pike, now De Witt H. Parker.

be used as propagation grounds. Many fallen trees and brush has been removed and workmen plan to lower the water level as soon as chanel work is completed at the dam and remove additional debris. Stumps in the channel will be cut off below the water level.

At the dam a stone spillway has been constructed and the water from the canal will drain into the river through an 18 inch tile, equipped with a gate to prevent river water from entering the stream.

Stones for the construction of the spillway and culverts were obtained at the old canal locks at Whiskey Switch where the state dam across the Scioto made a feeder for the canal. Stones near the dam will be cemented to keep the water from washing under them.

Fills are being completed in the canal-river levee and piling will be installed at points where there is a possibility of future trouble. A shelter house, bathroom and toilets will be erected and an area 3000 by 250 feet will be cleared, graded and landscaped. Rustic tables, benches and stone stoves will be placed over the grounds. Plans for the park and its management will be under state supervision.

The park was first started as an FERA project and never completed. Shortly after the FERA project stopped high waters washed out sections of the levee and took thousands of stocked fish into the river. Since repairs have been made the canal has been heavily stocked by the state conservation department.

The canal is fed by springs and

Marian Martin Sew Chart Complete Diagrammed Included. PATTERN 9601

Don't you think this junior miss deserves A-plus in smartness? We do, for she's chosen the most suitable school frock imaginable—a two-piece model so popular it bid fair to become the campus queen. Best of all, it's a frock, either pair of which may be worn separately with an extra blouse or skirt. The blouse puts in a good word for soft tailoring, while bodice darts give the growing girl ample room. Straight-line and easy-to-make—the skirt has just enough pleats to make it action-perfect. With contrast so much in vogue, she'd be smart to let her blouse and skirt contrast—say, a blouse of jersey or crepe as "tops" for a skirt of checks, stripes or plaid. Velvet would make a dressier version. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9601 may be ordered only in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 14 requires 2 1/2 yards 54 inch fabric.

5 DESPERADOES SURROUNDED IN MOUNTAIN AREA

Oklahoma Peace Officers Using Hounds to Trail Prison-Breakers

McALESTER, Okla., Dec. 4.—(INS)—A great circle of grim, heavily armed, alert possumen surrounded a mountain 16 miles east of here today, awaiting the command to close in on the five desperadoes who yesterday shot their way out of the Muskogee city-federal jail.

Sheriff H. H. Sherrill telephoned here late last night that his men had surrounded the five desperate killers, and asked that a plane be sent to help him locate the exact mountain hiding place of the jail breakers.

The locale of what may be a desperate gun battle is a rugged, heavily wooded mountain five miles southeast of Hartshorne.

Of Desperate Gang
Four of the five fugitives are members of the notorious "Irish" O'Malley bandit and kidnap gang—Dewey Gilmore, Russell Cooper,

Still Yawning

MRS. P. E. Wakelin of Victoria, B. C., above, yawned her way back into a hospital after 74 continuous days of yawning. The mouth-stretching malady is alleged to have started when her husband, a taxi driver, told her a joke. Mrs. Wakelin has dropped in weight

Leonard Short, and Dan Heady—called by veteran peace officers one of the worst gangs that ever roamed the southwest. They were awaiting sentence for a $14,000 bank robbery at Okeman, Okla. Irish O'Malley is serving a life sentence for the kidnaping of August Luer, Alton, Ill.

The fifth fugitive is Lanny Garrett, awaiting trial on a Mann act charge.

A sixth jail breaker, Ed Blackburn, was fatally wounded by Muskogee officers in their vain attempt to halt the break. In the withering exchange of bullets Chief of Detectives Ben Bolton was shot in the head. He is in a critical condition.

Heady was wounded, but was picked up by his fleeing comrades.

Wife Under Arrest
Heady's wife visited him in the Muskogee jail shortly before noon yesterday. She kissed him goodbye and left. A few moments later he flashed a gun, he and his comrades overpowered a guard, raided the jail arsenal, and, firing wildly at jail attendants and officers who endeavored to block their escape, dashed to the street where they commandeered a car and sped away amid a hail of gunfire.

Heady's wife was under arrest today, suspected of smuggling the gun to her husband.

Bloodhounds were rushed from the state prison here to aid in the search for the quintet after the abandoned auto was found near here.

Searchers were ordered to take no chances with the desperate fugitives as they prepared to close in on their quarry, being instructed to shoot on sight.

JASTER REPORTS FEDERAL, STATE CASH SET ASIDE

Nearly Five Miles of Road East of Village to Be Widened, Macadamized

Final approval of $97,000 in federal aid highway projects for Pickaway-co was announced Wednesday by John J. Jaster, Jr., state highway director.

One of the projects amounting to $70,000, covers the improvement of 4.86 miles on state highway No. 10, better known as U. S. Route 22. The improvement will start at the east corporation line of New Holland and extend east 4.86 miles. It is understood plans for the road include an 80 foot right-of-way and widening. The present road is macadam.

The second project includes 6.30 miles of secondary state routes and is listed at $27,000. Local state highway employees had not received official word of the approval and were unable to announce the location or plans for these improvements.

Under federal aid projects the cost of the improvements are shared by the state and government. The work is let on a contract basis and contractors employ relief labor.

Projects for all Ohio counties were announced by Mr. Jaster involving a total estimated cost of $7,414,429.

ments, as well as scurrilous suggestions. I have said repeatedly that if anyone had any proof of wrong doing, I would very promptly take some heads off and demand vigorous prosecution.

Mouthpiece of Chain

"Second, Mr. Harter is the mouth-piece of a chain of unscrupulous newspapers who admitted their guilt of conducting an advertising shake-down racket against the distillers who sell to the state of Ohio. Perhaps they have found that their shake-down was ineffective and their several avaricious cash registers have suffered. There is a campaign of vindictiveness, and their objective is to destroy those whom they cannot control. Mercenary motives lie back of their crusade which has a rancorous front.

"Third," Davey continued, "I took no part, directly or indirectly in the fate of the Harter resolution and very scrupulously kept hands off. My demand has been that if there are any facts or provable charges, they should go into a court of law."

Other sources said the ministry of aeronautics had sent out orders to be passed on to the personnel of the aviation and motorized military divisions "not to worry" about oil supplies, and "by no means to relax activities because of the possibility of a shortage of fuel."

Officials also flatly denied reports that the expeditionary forces had fuel enough to last only three or four months.

Officially Denied

Against this circumstantial evidence of negotiations, was the statement of the foreign office spokesman: "It is absolutely untrue and we officially deny it. It has already been denied on the American side."

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(INS)—An emphatic denial of published reports that the Italian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey had negotiated a 30-year-contract to supply oil to the Italian government came from Walter C. Teagle, president of the company, today.

"You can't deny too emphatically that we know nothing whatever about any such deal," Teagle told International News Service. "We just wouldn't have any interest at all in a deal involving a government monopoly."

LUTHERAN MEN TO HONOR EIGHT CHARTER MEMBERS

CLUB OBSERVES AN ANNIVERSARY THURSDAY NIGHT

Members Who Helped Form Successful Men's Unit to Be Paid Tribute

Eight members of the Lutheran brotherhood when it was organized twenty-five years ago will be honored Thursday evening when the group observes its anniversary.

They are Julius Helwage, William, Harvey and Frank Heffner, Ed Sensenbrenner, W. E. Crist, Frank and Ed Mason.

Two of the charter members, Mr. Sensenbrenner and Mr. Helwage, will have parts in the program, the former speaking on "The Joy That I've Found in the Brotherhood," and the latter on "Some of the Achievements of the Past Twenty-five Years."

Charles L. Mack, an active member of the organization, will use as his subject: "The Forward Look of the Brotherhood."

Dr. G. J. Troutman, one of the principal persons behind the brotherhood and its success, will make what is expected to be the leading address of the evening in which he relates the history of the church group. Carl C. Leist will pay tribute to the charter member.

The Lutheran brotherhood, through its history, has been one of the most active and successful organizations in any church in the city. It has sponsored and supported many worthwhile projects within the church and has proved one of the bulwarks behind the constant growth that has made Trinity Lutheran, what is believed to be, the largest congregation of any individual church in the county.

A large crowd is expected to attend Thursday evening's meeting. It will be held in the parish house.

SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE HEALTH DAY DEC. 12

Superintendents of schools throughout the state were urged today by Dr. E. L. Bowsner, director of the State Department of Education, to arrange for an observance of Health Day in the schools Thursday, December 12. The observance is to be a feature of the sale of Christmas Seals, which started Thanksgiving Day and will continue until Christmas.

"I am happy to commend to superintendents of county, city and exempted village school districts the observance of Health Day in the schools," Dr. Bowsner said, in a letter sent to school superintendents over the state. "Since the educational program against tuberculosis comes each year from Thanksgiving to Christmas, as carried on in Ohio by the Ohio Public Health association and its affiliated local Christmas Seal Committees, it seems appropriate for the school system of our great state to set aside a part of one school day in which to discuss health in its personal and community aspects."

In his communication to the superintendents of schools, Dr. Bowsner suggested that they cooperate with the local Christmas Seal Sale Committees to insure the continuance of the educational campaign against the spread of tuberculosis.

"Curfew" Girl Carries On As Jail Teacher

EDITH MAXWELL, the hill country school teacher who received sentence of 25 years in prison for slaying her father when he attempted to whip her for staying out late, is pictured teaching the "three R's" to other mountain girls in the Wise, Va., jail, where she is awaiting transfer to prison. Meanwhile, Edith's case is being taken up by women's organizations throughout the United States, which rankle at the alleged injustice of her conviction. The latest condemnation of the guilty verdict came from the National Women's party in convention at Columbus, O., which passed a resolution condemning her trial before a jury from which women were excluded.

Many Oriental Trees in Circleville

By W. M. REID

In the city of Circleville are found growing several rare trees of eastern Asia. These trees have peculiarities not common to our native American trees. The Maidenhair of Ginkgo tree is grown about the Chinese temples and is considered sacred. This tree has existed unchanged for many million years and is the sole survivor of all similar species. In the different geological ages through which the earth has passed fossilized remains of this tree have been found, making it the oldest tree in existence.

The leaves of the Ginkgo are most peculiar in their arrangement on the branch. The leaves of our native trees are in opposite or in spirals, while on this tree they are arranged in clusters of three to five on spurs like the blossoms of apples or pears. While the leaves of our trees are net veined the Ginkgo has fan-shaped parallel veins with scallops at the upper ends. The fruit is a drupe, that is, a fruit like a cherry or plum. This fruit is acrid and ill-smelling, but the nut inside is edible.

Two Known in City

This tree was introduced into this country about 150 years ago. While not common it is to be found in almost every city in the United States. Two specimens are known to be in this city. One at the residence of John G. Boggs on W. Union-st., and the other on the Post Office grounds on E. Main-st. The latter is a small tree and has been hampered by other trees growing too near it.

In the larger parks of the country it is to be found in numbers and in Washington, D. C. it is favored as a street tree, there being whole streets lined with this exotic tree.

Another Asiatic tree, the Empress tree or Paulownia, a native of Japan, is growing on the Post Office grounds. The name was given to it by eastern botanists at the insistence of Paul 1, Czar of Russia in honor of his daughter, Anna Paulowna.

The leaves of this tree grow very large, particularly on the younger trees, some of which may be more than a foot in diameter. Unlike most of the native trees, the leaf stems are hollow, resembling very much the leaves of the pumpkin vine.

The flowers, which precede the leaves in the spring, grow in pale violet shaped panicles, of a pale violet hue with yellow stripes and spots, and having a very pleasant odor.

Not Very Hardy

In this latitude the tree is not altogether hardy. During the severe winter of 1917-18 this tree was frozen back to the roots, but the succeeding summer it threw out shoots twenty feet long. Since that time it has grown to be a considerable tree as there have been no hard winters to kill it. The flowers, though, are likely to be killed by moderately cold winters as they are formed in the previous season. This tree will seed itself, as several young trees have been found to the leeward, showing that the seed are wind carried.

This species was brought from the far east about 100 years ago. A third rare species is the Japanese Pagoda tree or Sophora Japonica. The only specimen I have ever seen is that one growing on the U. B. parish lot on E. Main-st. It is an oriental cousin to our flowering, or yellow locust. The term Japonica indicates that it is a native of Japan, although it is to be found in China.

Its leaves are like our locust, being compound, while its flowers resemble the native tree, its pods are somewhat unlike, as they are constructed between the beans. Its blooming season is in July while our species blossoms in April and May. The wood of this tree is used to a great extent in the east for cabinet work. An infusion of the bark is used as a medicine. Even when being handled by workmen they are affected by the touch and presence of this wood.

A few seedlings of this species found growing under it have been planted by Safety Director L. T. Shaner on the Berger hospital grounds.

GIFTS

THE GIFT derives its value from the rank of the giver," someone wrote long ago—a falsehood. "In giving," another old pronouncement goes, "a man receives more than he gives and the more in proportion to the value of the thing given;" and that, while true in so far as it repeats the more ancient saying that "tis more blessed to give than to receive, is, in its remainder, transparently unworthy. For was there not the widow who cast into the treasury of the temple at Jerusalem more than all they that were casting into a treasury a farthing—all her living? By the teaching accounted Divine, the teaching commemorated and acclaimed on Christmas Day, hers was the greatest gift of all.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote: "The gift, to be true, must be the flowing of the giver unto him." That is said to reach the heights of clean thinking. "For the gift without the giver is bare."

Quite obviously, if profit there may also be loss if minds a bit too sharp pursue thoughts upon gifts and giving too eagerly. The ancient error of looking the gift-horse in the mouth is one pitfall. Doubting gift-givers did that to see how old the horses were and why the givers were giving them away. All the analyses of giving demand, as a duty, discreet restraint.

Away with the thought, too, that Christmas giving is a game of trading blind. Gifts and giving have been stimulant of thought among the poets and the thinkers since the beginnings of literature. A modern writer who appropriates philosophy as his particular dish declares that a death in the family is a "provocation to philosophy." Little less than that is a gift, whether from a member of the family or from someone else.

GLORIFYING SALLY

WE ARE surprised at a report from Reading, Pa., to the effect that a college professor refused to speak at a luncheon gathering because Sally Rand was also on the program.

Has not Sally insisted that she is interested in classical art, that her stage presentations are very, very legitimate, that she is, indeed, a reputable pilgrim toiling along the road to Mt. Olympus.

Shame on a university scholar who is so far lacking in a fine sense of cultural discrimination that he snubs this distinguished exponent of the terpsichorean art.

Everyone knows that Sally Rand, in U. S. POLICIES IN EUROPE RESULT DIRECTLY FROM FAR EAST SITUATION.

WASHINGTON—There are several A B C's to be kept in mind in gauging the ups and downs of the European barometer.

Probably the most essential of these is the fact that almost everything the United States does in Europe is a direct result of developments in the Far East.

Among these, the most important is the unprecedented liaison between the U. S. State Department and the British Foreign Office. This began some ago in dealing with China's currency problem.

Long before that, the determination of a small group of Senators from a bloc of Far Western states to force up the price of silver, had resulted in a policy of silver purchase by the United States Treasury. This, in turn, forced up the cost of living in China eventually caused the abandonment of the silver standard by the Chinese Government.

Japan's military march into the northern provinces of China was partially an outgrowth of this silver policy. Japanese invasion would have come anyway, especially because of the preoccupation of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. But the silver policy hastened it.

CHINESE SILVER

The abandonment of silver and the depreciation of the Chinese dollar made it more difficult for Japanese goods to find a Chinese market. Japanese merchants found their wares piling up on the docks of Kobe and Osaka. Japanese factories began to close down.

This gave the Japanese military clique their excuse. They raised a hue and cry for the occupation of North China. And despite the protests of Great Britain and the hesitancy of the Japanese Foreign Office, eventually they got their way.

Meanwhile the British Foreign Office and the American State Department continue to play a close game. Occasionally there are slight signs of disharmony.

One of these came when Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British adviser to China on its new currency policy, passed through Canada. He telegraphed Henry Morgenthau to meet him in Ottawa.

Henry, who felt that any Britisher who wanted to come to see him should come to Washington, wired back telling Sir Frederick, in effect, where to get off.

But aside from this, Anglo-American policy in the Far East is almost hand-in-glove.

point of enduring fame, will far outrank the average occupant of a professorial chair. What discerning modern would dare class Plato with a torrid fan dance? Hotcha! It just isn't done.

And yet as I indignantly declared, "And you don't approve of Hemingway?"

In the rather peculiar Ethiopian situation, the Lion of Judah is the underdog.

A judge's ruling that a wife may rifle her husband's pockets gives an aspect of legality to an ancient custom.

With Ethiopian temperatures ranging well above 100 degrees, the Italian army should be inclined to concede that Sherman knew his military onions.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Official Washington doesn't give an ounce of weight to any of the information it receives concerning the detailed progress of events in Ethiopia.

All accounts from Addis Ababa interrupted Italian successes.

All accounts from Addis Ababa indicate that the Fascist forces are in a bad way—not only held in check but suffering from malaria, dysentery and a miscellany of tropical diseases.

SPEEDY CAMPAIGN NEEDED

In a general way, however, all experts (state, departmental, military and medical) agree that Premier Mussolini realizes the necessity of hurrying up his campaign.

The substitution of Marshal Badoglio for General De Bono as the Italians' field commander is spoken of as convincing evidence of this.

De Bono, war department authorities say, has the reputation of a competent, cautious warrior but Badoglio is referred to as a whirlwind fighter; not so safe as De Bono but speedier—if he gets away with it.

DEATH AND SANCTIONS
Deaths of the United States health service concur that Italy's forces undoubtedly will be so disease-stricken if kept long in the Ethiopian climate as to disqualify them, 50 per cent or so, for military activities.

Soldiers agree that a desperately sick man can't fight.

And diplomats and commerce department statisticians point out that Mussolini will be starved out shortly by "sanctions," if the remainder of the world remains consolidated against him.

DELAY FATAL
"It's all very well," as a commerce department official remarked to me, "for Benito to warn that he will consider it an act of outright hostility if an oil-producing country cuts off his supply of oil (he has none of his own) from him."

"But what will he do about it?" "Without oil he can't fight even Ethiopia. How, then, with his supply cut off, can he fight the oil-producing country also?"

But Italy has, from all accounts, enough reserve oil to last for about a year—for warfare against Ethiopia, not against any really formidable power. Obviously, then, it must rush its Ethiopian campaign, before its limited oil supply is exhausted.

Here, then, apparently is the reason for the acceleration of his offensive in Ethiopia. Haste may be dangerous for him, but delay is still more dangerous.

BRITAIN'S HASTE
Suppose Italy manages to conquer Ethiopia before its oil and cotton and steel and other supplies are exhausted.

It will, of course, set up a puppet Ethiopian government, which will make peace with Rome. Peace is all that the League of Nations has been professing to strive for—but Britain, at least, will not like this kind of a peace. Its whole aim has been to prevent Italy from obtaining such a foothold in north-eastern Africa.

TO BLUFF IT?
If Duce's plan is to "bluff it through" before the League of Nations can "gang" him.

It may work, some diplomats think so.

Meanwhile, Japan is gobbling northern China with its eyes on the southern coast and the Philippines and maybe Hongkong and Singapore and Java and India.

It is a period of readjustments.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

By ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

A middle-aged bachelor, Andrew Darcia, has been found murdered in the boarding house of Alice Hemingway, stabbed to death with a missing carving knife as he slept. The night before Lucy Upham, an old friend, had requested Alice to ask Darcia to leave because she disliked him. Before the police, headed by Lieutenant Larabee, arrive, Alice finds a hairpin she knows belongs to Janet Bell, her youngest boarder, in Darcia's room. She secretes it in her own hair. Larabee summons Alice from the living room where she and her seven remaining boarders have been waiting. The detective asks about the various boarders and the two servants.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 9
"EVERYBODY else in the house get along with Darcia?" the detective asked.

I hesitated again. "Nobody was especially fond of him except Hemingway. I mean nobody chose him for a friend. He antagonized most people by his sarcasm. Lately it has been worse, his sarcasm. I think he thought it was clever, smart to disagree, and make caustic remarks, and I think he was rather pleased with himself when he hurt someone. He used to smile to himself when he said something that was mean." He had smiled last night when he refused to pass Miss Cambridge the salt.

"Who disliked him the most?"

"I really don't know whether anyone disliked him. I said that no one was fond of him." I could have told him then and there about Lucy's ultimatum last night, but I didn't, and I didn't intend to. What had passed between Lucy and me was our own business. I figured that if I told him, he'd jump right to the conclusion that Lucy was his murderer. Lucy! Imagine! I would as soon have suspected myself. I wished later, though, that I had told him. It would have been better for me.

"Any open quarrels lately, between Mr. Darcia and the rest of your people?"

"There never were any open quarrels, Lieutenant Larabee. Perhaps I've misled you. At least if there were, I didn't know of any, and it doesn't take long in this house for news to travel."

"Then you don't know much about Mr. Andrew Darcia?"

"Why yes, I do! I know a lot about him. I know what he liked to eat, and how he liked his room, and that at heart he was a very quiet, unassuming sort of man." And, grinning to myself, how to turn his remarks so they wouldn't hurt badly. I was well versed in that. I knew Mr. Darcia very well.

"But that isn't going to tell me who murdered him, Mr. Penny."

"I had to admit it wasn't. But then it seemed so preposterous that Mr. Darcia had been murdered."

"And with my own carving knife?"

"Let's take Hemingway. He has the room next to Darcia. What do you know about him?"

"I said that all I knew about Mr. Hemingway was that he had been married for two years was that he was friendly with Mr. Darcia—that Mr. Darcia had brought him to the house to live, and that he and Mr. Darcia played pinochle in the library for two hours every night. They had played last night, I thought. At least Lucy had said they were playing, when she came in to see me."

"Larabee must have seen from my face that I didn't like Martin Hemingway for I was unprepared for his next question."

"And you don't approve of Hemingway?"

"I don't say that, Lieutenant Larabee. I just don't like him very well, and I never have. But as for Martin Hemingway murdering Mr. Darcia—why it's out of the question." And yet as I indignantly declared, "And you don't approve of Hemingway?"

"And don't you approve of Hemingway?"

And don't you approve of Hemingway? I didn't have then, but I would have in a month. She said I was to keep the room for her, and that she'd arrive the morning of January first. So I did. I kept the room, although Mrs. Starbuck didn't call again. At 10 o'clock the morning of January first, she arrived with her baggage, introduced herself and has been here ever since. When I had asked her over the phone how she had found out about my house—for I always do that—she said Mrs. Chapman had recommended it. I hadn't seen Mrs. Chapman since she went south to live, hadn't heard from her in fact. That's why I kept the room for Mrs. Starbuck. I had to tell her she was a friend of Mrs. Chapman's. I knew she'd be all right—and her voice sounded very sweet over the phone.

"And did you ever write to this Mrs. Chapman about Mrs. Starbuck?"

"I didn't. But Mrs. Upham did. She knew Mrs. Chapman, too. It was a social note. I had to tell her the rest of it but I knew she'd get it out of me or Lucy because he was interested in Mrs. Starbuck. Lucy and I almost had a quarrel about writing to Mrs. Chapman. She wanted me to do it, and I refused, so she did. The answer had only come yesterday in the morning mail."

"Did this Mrs. Chapman recall Mrs. Starbuck?"

"No, she didn't. She knew no one by that name. And then I had to tell him when the answer had come. I felt pretty foolish."

"Mrs. Starbuck ever quarrel with Mr. Darcia?"

"I don't think they ever spoke, except for simple greetings. Mrs. Starbuck doesn't mix very much."

"So I gathered," he returned dryly. "I couldn't let it rest there. 'If you think Mrs. Starbuck murdered Mr. Darcia, you're on the wrong track entirely. She's a sweet woman, and she couldn't do a thing like that! Couldn't I tell you! She may be shy and reserved, but she's lived here for three months, and she's been nothing but quiet and orderly.'"

"If I'd take your word about everything, Mr. Penny, I'm afraid I wouldn't find Darcia's murderer."

I subsided after that. "The third floor. What about Marcelle Cambridge?"

"She's a spinster school teacher. Lieutenant Larabee, and she's been with me seven years, and she wouldn't kill a fly."

Common Sense Advised In Efforts to Reduce

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERY ONCE in a while someone sounds a solemn warning about the dangers of reducing, and instances of the well advertised cases of certain Hollywood actresses as support to the arguments. I find, for instance, in a book published a few weeks ago, called "Diet and Diet," by Carl Malinberg, the accounts of the cases of Renee Adoree, Barbara La Marr, Lila Lee and M. A. D. de Hervey.

Dr. Clendenning, the case of Louis Wolheim.

Dr. Malinberg's book is a very interesting one and has some very sensible advice about diet fads, but I must say I think these old warnings have been overworked. He says that Renee Adoree, during the height of the slimness craze, persisted in dieting although she only weighed 100 pounds. As a result, in 1930, she suffered a complete physical breakdown. "So weakened was her system from lack of proper nourishment that she fell an easy victim to tuberculosis of the lungs, and had to be removed to a sanatorium. Two years later she returned to Hollywood weighing only 85 pounds. She attempted to go to work again, but finally died of tuberculosis. Now, I really cannot believe that the reducing diet caused Miss Adoree to acquire tuberculosis. It is probable that she had tuberculosis from childhood, and most patients with the disease do, and that was why she remained normally so thin. That is also why any restriction of her diet met with such a complete response in a reduction in weight. I cannot feel that the habit of reducing brought on her tuberculosis, although I will admit that it did not help her to fight it.

Real Warning
The only real warning I can draw from such instances is that we must exercise some common sense in undertaking a reducing diet. A person who is underweight should not try to force matters, should not bow to the dictates of modern ideas about a fashionable figure any further.

I believe, however, that it is unwise for anyone to attempt to reduce by use of drugs except under the advice and under the observation of a physician.

Most people who try reducing really need it, and they may be assured that no harm will come to their health from such attempts. It is, however, a matter of normal or abnormal weight. A person of normal weight, just a "little" more than normal weight. It is a matter of sad experience with the overweight; they know that if they had begun to exercise caution about their dietary habits at the time when weight was normal, it would be much easier to keep that way than it is to remove the extra pounds after it has been placed in position.

RUMOR PERSISTS DESPITE DENIALS OF BIG OIL DEAL

Standard Oil Company Officials Deny Agreement is Pending

IL DUCE IN JOVIAL MOOD

Leader Tells Aides They Need Not Worry About Source of Fuel Supply

ROME, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Premier Benito Mussolini has let his subordinates know that Italy need not worry about oil supplies, and this knowledge gave credibility to day, despite denials on both sides of the Atlantic, to the report that a $90,000,000 deal has been made or was being made with a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to provide Italy with oil if the League of Nations ban it.

Adding to the denial in New York of Walter C. Teagle, president of Standard of New Jersey, the foreign office spokesman said this was just "another" report, a tale, yet private Italian and foreign sources refused to dismiss the possibility of some such deal.

Scotts At Shortage

When the question of a possible oil shortage, due to the threatened league embargo, came up at the last meeting of the fascist grand council, Mussolini is reliably reported to have said confidently: "As far as oil supplies are concerned, we may rest easy on that score."

Furthermore, it was learned that Italian newspapers have been urged in the national interest to "soft pedal" news about Italian oil.

TWINS' MOTHER DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Myrtle Van Gundy, 19, Victim of Complications

Mrs. Myrtle Van Gundy, 19, of Circleville, Rt. 3, mother of the "Siamese" twin daughters, recently born at Berger hospital, died Tuesday at the institution at 5:45 p. m. of complications.

Mrs. Van Gundy was born March 12, 1916 at Moorehead, Ky., the daughter of Jessie and Vincie Hart, both deceased. Her only survivor is her husband, Walter.

The babies, stillborn, were delivered by a Caesarian operation and weighed 14 pounds, 11 ounces. Mrs. Van Gundy's body will be removed to Moorehead for funeral services and burial.

REVENUE COLLECTOR, DETECTIVE ARE SLAIN

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 4.—(INS)—A federal internal revenue agent, Louis Pappan, and George Stewart, private detective, were shot and killed here early today in a fight in the Sheridan club, exclusive Tulsa night club.

Holly Anderson, Tulsa co-attorney, said today he was questioning Tryee Parks, parking concession manager of the club, and George McCullough, caterer, in connection with the fatal shooting. "Parks said Stewart and Pappan entered the night club and tried to hold it up," Anderson said.

"Parks and McCullough said they jumped in and beat them up and then took them outside. Shortly thereafter, according to other employees and guests of the club, shots were heard."

Hull Office Studying Oil Deal Report

National Officials Doubt Truth of Rome Press Reports Concerning Supply

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Danger of a new move developing in Europe to put upon the United States responsibility for failure of the old world to settle its political quarrels was seen here today.

Reports of a secret deal between Standard Oil interests and the Italian government for unlimited supplies of oil to Italy's war machine in return for a 30-year monopoly of the Italian market prompted the fears that Uncle Sam was in danger of being made the "goat" for the failure of the European powers to enforce peace.

Reports Checked

The state department professed to be without any knowledge whatever of the proposed deal, outside of press reports. The department was, of course, concerned over the reports and efforts were being made to check them both here and through the American embassy in Rome.

However, officials were inclined to view the reported deal as a possible bluff on the part of the Italian government to forestall imposition of a league embargo on oil.

If it became definitely apparent that Italy was going to obtain all the oil it needed for its war machine from American interests, it was considered here as likely that the league powers would use that fact as an excuse for not applying an oil embargo against Italy.

May Forestall Action

Thus, it was pointed out, it would be to the advantage of the SURVIVING a 10-day cross-continent ride in the sealed ice compartment of a railway refrigerator car, Glenn Boldan, 14-year-old Motley, Minn., farm boy, is pictured above on his cot in a Baltimore hospital, where physicians worked to soothe a resultant fever and if possible to save the boy's frostbitten feet from amputation. Starved and half frozen from the icy prison which he had entered at Roseville, Cal., Glenn was rescued from the refrigerator in Baltimore when another youth was attracted by moans as he unloaded lettuce on the freight platform. Glenn, who had run away from home on Labor Day to escape school, "invaded" the car at Roseville to return home because his father was sick.

Officers Killed as High Wind Forces Bolling Wreck

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Two army air officers, Major George M. Rice and Lieut. Harry M. Coffey, were killed in a plane crash today at Bolling field.

Officials at the field said the plane was coming in from Mitchell field, New York, and was about to land when apparently high wind blew their ship out of control and sent it crashing into a clump of trees at the east end of the landing runway.

Geoffrey was piloting the plane, it was believed, as Major Rice was being brought here as a passenger.

Army air corps officials were unable to explain the crash. The ship was at low altitude and preparing to land when it got out of control. The plane was an old model pursuit type.

Major Rice's home was in Thompson, Wyo., and Capt. Geoffrey came from St. Paul, Minn.

Rice, who was 37, enlisted in the army during the World war was detailed to the air corps. He was made a second lieutenant during the war and afterwards remained in the service, attaining his present rank of major on June 20, 1935. Geoffrey was 26 and graduated from West Point in 1930.

DAVEY ANSWERS HOUSE DEMANDS IN HARTER CASE

Governor Declares Legislator is "Tool" of Chain of Newspapers

HUNSICKER VOTES "NO"

Representative Clark Hunsicker voted against the resolution demanding Governor Davey submit proof of his charges against Rep. George J. Harter.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—(INS)—

Gov. Martin L. Davey this afternoon accepted the challenge of the House of Representatives and promised to produce legal evidence substantiating his charges that Rep. George J. Harter (D), blind Akron solon, "hounded" state officials to get liquor licenses for Akron residents.

Davey's statement was his reply to the barrage of charges laid down by Harter in seeking a legislative probe of the state liquor department and of alleged political influence of Davey and Francis Foulson, state Democratic chairman, to obtain votes against Harter's proposal.

Put in Legal Form

"Inasmuch as Representative Harter has asked for proof of his unusual interest in several liquor licenses in Akron, it will be made available to the House of Representatives just as soon as it can be put in proper legal form," the governor declared.

The House late yesterday adopted a resolution by Harter by a vote of 63 to 52 calling on Davey to produce evidence in support of his charge.

"Meanwhile," Davey added, "may I call attention to the following conspicuous facts: First, Mr. Harter has carried on an unprovoked and unwarranted assault on the integrity of the state liquor department without offering any facts or making any specific charges. His has been a campaign of innuendo and inferential statements." (Continued on Page Six)

AAA Defended, Assailed In High Court Actions

Beet Growers Approve Legislation While Cotton Manufacturers Hit Federal Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(INS)—The AAA was assailed and defended in briefs filed in the Supreme court today by "Friends of the court" in the Hoosac Mills case which is to be argued Monday.

While counsel for the national and mountain states beet growers associations defended constitutionality of the AAA processing taxes attorneys for the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers presented an opposite view.

The brief of the cotton manufacturers was largely devoted to an effort to destroy the government's argument that "the general welfare" clause of the constitution gives congress the power to raise processing taxes and pay benefits to farmers.

"The general welfare clause," Malcolm Donald and Edward Elder, Boston lawyers, contended, cannot remove the limits on federal power contained in the rest of the nation's basic law.

"Otherwise," said the brief, "we reach the absurd result that the express intent of the constitution to confine the regulation of agriculture and other local matters to the states can be nullified by the simple expedient of appropriating

BUTTON SUPPLY IS NEEDED FOR GARMENT WORK

Four sewing machines were humming Wednesday at the relief offices on E. Main-st where 14 women are turning out garments for needy families.

Approximately 300 towels were turned out Tuesday. Dresses, shirts, children's coveralls and various other items will be made under the project in charge of Mrs. Beulah H. Madison, N. Scioto-st.

One of the items being made Wednesday were children's outing bloomers and somewhere along the line the government left out buttons. Local residents have been asked to look through their sewing baskets and if they have additional buttons to call the relief office and employees will call for them.

Old patterns are also badly needed by the workers.

STOCK MARKET CLIMBS TODAY

One to Three Points Recorded; Steels in Demand

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(INS)—The stock market swept forward 1 to 3 points today in a continuation of yesterday's rise, with renewed efforts abroad to find a peace formula for the Italo-Ethiopian hostilities the principal stimulant.

A number of carriers like N. Y. Central went into new high ground.

Slivers were buoyant with U. S. Smelting up 3 points. Anaconda and International Nickel went to new highs in big dealings. Steels were in better demand in response to the mid-week review of the industry. Sizeable gains were scored by Bethlehem and U. S. Steel. Westinghouse was up 2 points at one time in the equipments. Motors were stronger though gains were fractional. Oils were active and higher. Utilities lagged.

Cotton reacted after yesterday's bulge while grains were quiet. Bonds were strong. Gold currencies continued nervous.

COUNCILMEN TO MEET

City council will hold its regular meeting tonight and reconsider the bond issues recently passed for back bills and WPA projects. It was also believed other small appropriation ordinances would be considered.

Rich Man Missing

POLICE of three states joined in the search for Frank A. Possibility of foul play was indicated when his parents received a mysterious telegram, sent in Kansas City, a day after he left home to attend a football game at Lawrence, Kas. The wire simply read that he was "all right" and would be home the following day.

BERS EKE OUT 1-10 EDGE OVER NEW HOLLAND '5'

Tight Defense Stops Landman
With Single Action Shot;
Play Two More

Dressed in bright, flashy uniforms but failing to impress in their first start, the Red and Black cage team took New Holland into camp Tuesday evening in the CAC gym, 14 to 10.

A large crowd witnessed the contest. Whether it was the new uniforms, or the fact that the game was the first of the year, or what, the Tigers did not handle the ball as expected. Their defense was closely knit, however, and stopped big Ev Landman with only four points.

Several of the Red and Black hopefuls, who are expected to carry a lot of the burden of a successful season, appeared tired at times. But, after all, the game was the first of a long season and a couple more will be necessary before Jack Landman will have his boys in the shape they should be to become contenders for the Central Buckeye league title.

Scoreless First Period

Neither team was able to score in the first period. In the second the local crew took a lead of 8 to 2, that carried through the game. Speakman, sleek little forward, proved a threat at all times and gave promise in this contest that he will be a star. Herb Dennis performed well at guard and Landman was a constant threat, but Dick Melson and a couple more of his mates kept the tall star bottled up the biggest part of the game. Landman's only basket came on a follow shot when he grabbed the ball after a bounce and dropped it over the net.

The remainder of the week promises to be interesting with the Tiger crew meeting Bourneville on Friday evening and Jackson-Twp. on Saturday. Both games are to be played on the CAC court.

Walsh's National Eleven Leaves Ohio Out in Cold

Both Minnesota Tackles Chosen; Backfield Includes Smith, Berwanger, Wilson and Grayson

By DAVIS J. WALSH, (INS) Sports editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Based upon the findings of staff men and qualified observers in all sections of the country, the International News Service today is making public its all-American football team for 1935, as follows:

Ends: Tinsley, Louisiana State, and Moscrip, Stanford; tackles: Smith and Widseth, Minnesota; guards, Weller, Princeton, and Michaels, Villanova; center, Lester, Texas Christian; quarterback, Smith, Alabama; halfbacks, Berwanger, Chicago, and Wilson, Southern Methodist; fullback, Grayson, Stanford.

Few Are Unanimous

Thus, we are paying off on first money only and, in some cases, the decisions may seem to have been drawn a little fine. In fact, not more than four choices—Berwanger, Wilson, either Widseth or Smith and Weller—seem to need no defense whatever. They belong so definitely as to deny argument.

Where controversy begins, perhaps, is in awarding a team like Princeton only one place and Minnesota two. But this pair were great because they were teams, with one individual practically as good as another. Many selectors are listing Lea, of Princeton, at end but I'm assuming the responsibility of dropping him. I've seen the lad, he's all right—and that's about all.

It was a struggle to leave Biese, of Minnesota, out of the backfield. But Grayson is better now than at any time in three years—and in 1933 and 1934, this was good enough. Besides, Widseth and

ROSENBLUM TO RETIRE, THEN WED N. Y. HEIRESS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Maxie Rosenbloom, former world's light heavyweight champion, today announced he would retire from the ring Jan. 1 and within 60 days marry Mary Elizabeth Campbell, eastern heiress.

Rosenbloom now is working in a motion picture at the RKO-Radio studios. "I like acting better than fighting, anyway," he said. "I prefer comedy parts—but here I am playing the role of a gangster."

FIGHT CARD SET

The stage is all set for Norman Aronson's fight card at the armory Thursday evening with local boys to take part.

A substitution has been made with Joe Moore replacing Pug Fowler. Fowler slipped on the ice and has an ouchy ankle.

All the other principals are ready and everything is set for one big evening. Aronson announces.

The curtain-raiser is called at 8.30.

About This And That In Many Sports

New Holland or Atlanta

New Holland has a cager that Atlanta thinks it ought to have—Speakman, light-haired sophomore star, lives a lot nearer the Porry-Twp center than he does New Holland but he attends the latter school—His brother, George, starred in basketball and track at Atlanta ***

Both Teams Scouted

New Holland and Circleville cage teams were well-scouted Tuesday evening—Coaches Al Kauber of Ashville, Emil Hancy of Williamsport, and Bob Terhune of Jackson were in the stands. All are mutual foes of both teams in action last night—Kauber had Miller and Gregg of his team along, and even had a member of his school board, Timmy Miller, down to see how basketball is played here ***

East Out in Cold

Apparently eastern United States is short in football ability this fall—The Rose Bowl choice is Southern Methodist, considered west to most of us—The "northern choice" for the Miami Sugar bowl game is Texas Christian, also rated west—S. M. U. meets Stanford and should win and Texas Christian will probably play Louisiana State; this game is a toss-up with Stinging Sam Baugh's TCU crew a slight favorite ***

Moscrip Not Able

Monk Moscrip's parents have returned from the west coast to their home in Adena, Jefferson-co., and report their son because of injuries will be unable to play in the Rose Bowl contest—Moscrip will make most "all" teams for the third straight year—He does everything in the proper manner ***

Al-Simmons To Tiger

Get your last nicker Al Simmons, famed right-handed ball player, will be in the Detroit Tiger lineup next year—The Chicago Sox will receive $25,000 with Outfielder Gerry Walker and Infielder Gilbert English thrown in ***

LOUISIANA STATE, TEXAS CHRISTIAN IN "SUGAR BOWL"

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(INS)—Louisiana State university today sought permission of the southeastern conference to participate in the second annual "Sugar Bowl" grid classic, to be played here New Year's day.

D. S. U. and Texas Christian university were selected as the principals by the committee in charge last night.

Warren V. Miller, president of the mid-winter sports association, said today that both schools had definitely accepted the invitation, and that he had little doubt L. S. U. will be granted permission to play as Tulane was readily allowed to participate in last year's game.

Texas Christian's team was located at Texline, Tex., enroute to California where the horned frogs play Santa Clara, Saturday.

Both teams have been defeated once this season, T. C. U. by southern Methodist 20 to 14, last week after winning 10 straight games. The Frogs whipped Howard Payne, North Texas Teachers, Arkansas, Tulsa, Texas A. & M., Centenary, Baylor, Loyola, Texas and Rice. L. S. U. lost its opening game of the season to Rice 10 to 7, but thereafter built up an impressive record with wins over Texas, Marquette, Arkansas, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Mississippi State, Georgia, Southwestern and Tulane.

PIGS IS "INTEREST"

DEDHAM, Mass.—Chief of Police George C. McGilly had little trouble finding the 50 "ear-marked" pigs stolen from William P. Nickerson last May by Theodore and Daniel Chamberlain. He had an animated jig-saw on his hands, however, when the judge told him to find the "interest accrued by the stolen property during the time it was out of the hands of its owner." He is still looking for little piglets given away by the Chamberlain cousins.

San Francisco police continued to scour the city for someone with expert knowledge of chemistry in connection with poisoned baking soda which resulted in the deaths of three persons and the serious illness of fifteen. YALE GRADUATE HELPS LIBRARY

Sixteen Volumes Presented By Person Whose Identity
Remains Secret

"A graduate of Yale" who prefers to remain anonymous, has made a valuable gift to the Circleville Public Library. During the early summer word was received the local library had been included in a list of beneficiaries of gifts to be made by a member of the faculty of Yale University.
The notice was accompanied by a list of the publications of the Yale University Press, and which the librarians were asked to check with the needs of their individual institutions.

The following quotation from a letter received about ten days ago is self-explanatory, and is followed by a list of the books received, and now ready for circulation:

"Please be sure that I am happy now to be authorized to advise you that, on the instructions of A Graduate of Yale", I am directing the Yale University Press to forward to you, ... one copy each of the 16 volumes listed below, valued at $60, which you may enter in your records as having been presented by "A Graduate of Yale", since he has preferred this gift of his to be an anonymous one. The books thus chosen by him for presentation to your library are, I might add, those which were selected by the greatest number of the librarians who replied to our letter of last June. Under these circumstances the donor feels that the volumes he has now given to your library are books which have been chosen by those most familiar with the work of public libraries are being desirable additions to your collections—an opinion in which he trusts you will concur."

PATTERN 9601

Don't you think this junior miss deserves A-plus in smartness? We do, for she's chosen the most suitable school frock imaginable—a two-piece model so popular it bidfair to become the campus queen.
Best of all, it's a frock, either pa-of which may be worn separately with an extra blouse or skirt. The blouse puts in a good word for soft "tailoring, while bodice darts give the growing girl ample room.
Straight-line and easy-to-make—the skirt has just enough pleats to make it action-perfect. With contrast so much in vogue, she'd be smart to let her blouse and skirt contrast—say, a blouse of jersey or crepe as "tops" for a skirt of checks, stripes or plaid. Velvet or tweed would make a dressier version.

WPA Project Rebuilding Landmarks on Old Canal

New Bridge to Be Erected for Driving Into Recreational Area;
Stone Spillway to Add to Efficiency

By FRANKLIN KIBLER

Like rereading chapters of an old book, a local WPA project is reconstructing interesting and historic landmarks of the Ohio canal.

The old Westfall bridge crossing the canal will be one of the landmarks reconstructed in the project. The original stone abutments will be used and rails from the Court-st interurban line will complete the span. The roadway will be 14 feet wide.

The original steel bridge with plank flooring used at Westfall was carried away in the 1913 flood to a point about 200 feet down the canal and lodged against the Warehouse. It was not damaged and was moved to Walnut-ty.
This old bridge span was constructed on the "dump" type with a trap door used for loading grain on canal boats pulled under the bridge.

Forded Scioto

Vehicles forded the Scioto at a point near the old span and reached the Chillicothe pike, nov be used as propagation grounds.

Many fallen trees and brush has been removed and workmen plan to lower the water level as soon as chanel work is completed at the dam and remove additional debris. Stumps in the channel will be cut off below the water level.
At the dam a stone spillway has been constructed and the water from the canal will drain into the river through an 18 inch tile, equipped with a gate to prevent river water from entering the stream.

Stones for the construction of the spillway and culverts were obtained at the old canal locks at Whiskey Switch where the state dam across the Scioto made a feeder for the canal. Stones near the dam will be cemented to keep the water from washing under them.

Fills are being completed in the canal-river levee and piling will be installed at points where there is a possibility of future trouble.
A shelter house, bathhouse and toilets will be erected and an area 3000 by 250 feet will be cleared, graded and landscaped.
Rustic tables, benches and stone stoves will be placed over the grounds. Plans for the park and its management will be under state supervision.

The park was first started as an FERA project and never completed. Shortly after the FERA project stopped high waters washed out sections of the levee and took thousands of stocked fish into the river. Since repairs have been made the canal has been heavily stocked by the state conservation department.

The canal is fed by springs and

Leonard Short, and Dan Heady—called by veteran peace officers one of the worst gangs that ever roamed the southwest. They were awaiting sentence for a $14,000 bank robbery at Okemane, Okla. Irish O'Malley is serving a life sentence for the kidnapping of August Luer, Alton, Ill.

The fifth fugitive is Lanny Garrett, awaiting trial on a Mann act charge.

A sixth jail breaker, Ed Blackburn, was fatally wounded by Muskogee officers in their vain attempt to halt the break. In the withering exchange of bullets Chief of Detectives Ben Bolton was shot in the head. He is in a critical condition.

Heady was wounded, but was picked up by his fleeing comrades.

Wife Under Arrest
Heady's wife visited him in the Muskogee jail shortly before noon yesterday. She kissed him goodbye and left. A few moments later he flashed a gun, he and his comrades overpowered a guard, raided the jail arsenal, and firing wildly at jail attendants and officers who endeavor to block their escape, dashed to the street where they commandeered a car and sped away amid a hail of gunfire.

Heady's wife was under arrest today, suspected of smuggling the gun to her husband.

Bloodhounds were rushed from the state prison here to aid in the search for the quintet after the abandoned auto was found near here.

Searchers were ordered to take no chances with the desperate fugitives as they prepared to close in on their quarry, being instructed to shoot on sight.

Bing Crosby Back Home Under Whiteman's Baton

Famed Crooner Sang With Leader's "Rythm Boys"; Bailey and Sims to Be Guests of Bernie

When Bing Crosby returns to Paul Whiteman's program Thursday at 10 p. m. WLW he will be back home. Crosby obtained his start with the famous maestro.

One of Whiteman's "Rythm Boys," Bing gained considerable fame with that outfit, then graduated into his "own." His efforts have always been well-supported by his wife, the former Dixie Lee of movie fame, who has managed to keep him on the straight and narrow.

With Ramona, the Whiteman orchestra and other units, the hour should be highly entertaining.

Some of this evening's highlights:

One Man's Family at 8, WLW.
Burns and Allen at 8:30, WBNS.
Fred Allen at 9, WLW.
Lily Pons at 9, WBNS.
Ray Noble at 9:30, WBNS.

Sims and Bailey are Mr. and Mrs. in private life and are one of radio's ideal combinations with Lee Sims, wizard of the ivories, playing for Miss Bailey's distinctive presentation of songs. They have been heard as guest stars on numerous programs.

WORK ON ROUTE 22 NEAR NEW HOLLAND IS APPROVED

ASTER REPORTS FEDERAL, STATE CASH SET ASIDE

Nearly Five Miles of Road
East of Village to Be Widened, Macadamized

Final approval of $97,000 in federal aid highway projects for Pickaway county was announced Wednesday by John J. Jaster, Jr., state highway director.

One of the projects amounting to $70,000, covers the improvement of 4.86 miles on state highway No. 10, better known as U. S. Route 22. The improvement will start at the east corporation line of New Holland and extend east 4.86 miles. It is understood plans for the road include an 80 foot right-of-way and widening. The present road is macadam.

The second project includes 6.30 miles of secondary state routes and is listed at $27,000. Local state highway employees had not received official word of the approval and were unable to announce the location or plans for these improvements.

Under federal aid projects the cost of the improvements are shared by the state and government. The work is let on a contract basis and contractors employ relief labor.

Projects for all Ohio counties were announced by Mr. Jaster involving a total estimated cost of $7,414,429.

ments, as well as scurrilous suggestions. I have said repeatedly that if anyone had any proof of wrongdoing, I would very promptly take some heads off and demand vigorous prosecution.

Mouthpiece of Chain
"Second, Mr. Harter is the mouth-piece of a chain of unscrupulous newspapers who admitted their guilt of conducting an advertising shake-down racket against the distillers who sell to the state of Ohio. Perhaps they have found that their shake-down was ineffective and their several avaricious cash registers have suffered. There is a campaign of vindictiveness, and their objective is to destroy those whom they cannot control. Mercenary motives lie back of their crusade which has a sanctimonious front.

"Third," Davey continued, "I took no part, directly or indirectly in the fate of the Harter resolution and very scrupulously kept hands off. My demand has been that if there are any facts or provable charges, they should go into a court of law."

"GHOST TOWN" IN MASS.

NORTH ASHBURNHAM, Mass.—"Ghost Towns" are usually associated with arid deserts of Arizona and Nevada, but urban Massachusetts now claims one of the picturesque communities. "Safe Tonic," so named because its settlers believed it was the ideal spot for a permanent community, was explored by a group of surveyors. Wells, mine shafts and cellars were all that remained of the little town. The mine shafts were sunk by men seeking gold or other precious metals.

Other sources said the ministry of aeronautics had sent out orders to be passed on to the personnel of the aviation and motorized military divisions "not to worry" about oil supplies, and "by no means to relax activities because of the possibility of a shortage of fuel."

Officials also flatly denied reports that the expeditionary forces had fuel enough to last only three or four months.

Officially Denied
Against this circumstantial evidence of negotiations, was the statement of the foreign office spokesman: "It is absolutely untrue and we officially deny it. It has already been denied on the American side."

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(INS).—An emphatic denial of published reports that the Italian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey had negotiated a 30-year contract to supply oil to the Italian government came from Walter C. Teagle, president of the company, today.

"You can't deny too emphatically that we know nothing whatever about any such deal," Teagle told International News Service. "We just wouldn't have any interest at all in a deal involving a government monopoly."
